The campus offers an engaging environment for professional growth for every person participating in the learning experience. The engagements extend across State and National boundaries, giving every individual a great opportunity to benchmark with the brightest minds.

About the School of International Cooperation, Security and Strategic Languages (SICSSL)

School of International Cooperation, Security and Strategic Languages (SICSSL) offers Masters Programmes in International Relations, Foreign Affairs, Political Economy, and National Security; and Graduate and Masters Programmes in strategic Foreign Languages. The School has a unique syllabus with a specific focus on the external dimensions to India's internal security in the context of its foreign policy in key strategic geographies. The teaching pedagogy involves rigorous training in subject matter and strengthening proficiency in strategic foreign languages. The programs offered facilitate subject matter expertise along with language specialization of key geographies impacting India's National Security.

About the Course

The strategic importance of the Tibetan language in safeguarding India's security is paramount, particularly in light of the advanced age of the Dalai Lama and the growing instability surrounding the political situation in Tibet. Hence, in addition to the aforementioned reasons, the significance of Tibet within the framework of the India-China relationship is anticipated to be heightened. This elevation is attributed to the presence of Tibetan individuals deployed within Tibet along the border regions with India as part of the Chinese military. Furthermore, it is Tibet that shares a border with India, and a considerable part of the Himalayan region in India maintains strong connections to Tibetan culture and religion. Meanwhile, China asserts its territorial sovereignty over certain areas in India as components of the Tibet Autonomous Region or South Tibet.

Tibetan also is the language of Buddhism in India, Tibet, Mongolia, and Bhutan. Many of the important Buddhist text are only translated into Tibetan – i.e. Kagyur and Tengyur.
